Last week, 30th March, Pastor Ose began this series of raising the standard of our game. He left us longing for more knowledge at the end of the first service that we are so delighted he decided to continue this week.

He began by highlighting that the essence of lifting our game is so that the world can see us in action. Raising our game will raise our earnings, he said.

The place of information cannot be overemphasised in strategies to raising your game. The difference between successful people and unsuccessful ones is the information that they have.

The opportunities that will come your way is dependent on how much knowledge that you possess. Knowledge is the key to unlocking our potential. Information is needed to understand the trends of the market because the more knowledge you possess, the more authoritative you are in your line of business. Though it will cost you, the investment is a worthwhile one.

The place of inspiration cannot be sacrificed on the altar of information. This is because while information feeds your mind, inspiration motivates and propels you. The presence of knowledge alone without inspiration would still lead to stagnation as knowledge by itself cannot take you very far.

In conclusion, inspiration is a quickening force to be sought after and it can be found amongst an assortment of people. Therefore, you need to get inspiration in the light of where you are headed by opening yourself to it, move out of your comfort zone and venture out to explore witty inventions.
